

ORDER EXECUTION

1. Introduction

1.1. Our Order Execution is imposed to attain the best possible result in executing and dealing with our Clients' trades and market orders. In line with this procedure, you ensure that you have read our Risk Disclosure upon your use or access to our Services or products before trading with us.

2. Market Orders

2.1. You can initiate, modify, and view your orders on your Trading Platform with the Company. In addition, you may view the list of your orders and request an order cancellation through your Account on our Site. You are responsible for monitoring your pending orders and ensuring that your orders are not duplicated before you initiate more trades to avoid overusing your funds.

2.2. As our client, you can execute your trades through a Market Order, which is an instant execution with the relevant bid or ask price of the asset or instrument you intend to trade. You can also place your trade as a Pending Order, which will be executed later and at the price you specify for that particular position.

2.3. You may include a Stop Loss or a Take Profit amount for each position you execute. You understand and accept that you can only modify, cancel, and remove an order before execution. The execution venues available may change from time to time, and orders may be executed in the external market. We may also use one or more of the regulated markets, multilateral trading facilities, third-party affiliates of financial or investment firms, and firms with similar nature of business.

2.4. You may specify the expiration of your trade with the following limit orders:

- i. Day
- ii. Day + Extended Hours
- iii. Good 'til Cancelled + Extended Hours
- iv. Extended AM or PM

2.5. All pending orders are considered Good 'til Cancelled (GTC), which means that all orders will be executed unless you request to cancel such orders through your Trading Account. Any modification, cancellation, or removal will be considered invalid if an order is already executed or trading in the market.

3. Execution of Orders

3.1. You acknowledge that we may disclose your orders and trading activities to authorized third-party affiliates if deemed necessary.

3.2. You understand and accept that we consider various significant factors before executing an order, such as, without limitation, the price of the asset or instrument, cost of charges, speed of execution, market impact, specifications of the order, and the likelihood of execution and settlement. However, we do not consider the foregoing factors as priority factors. Nevertheless, we aim to ensure that the instructions from our clients are executed accordingly.

4. Cancellation of Orders

4.1. You acknowledge and accept that cancellation of orders is only upon request, subject to our approval. In addition, successful cancellation of orders may only be conducted during market hours, where canceling any order during market posting periods (pre-open, pre-close, and after-market) will not be available.

4.2. We reserve the right to reject or cancel orders if it does not meet the significant factors or if deemed necessary. Some orders may be rejected or canceled, while some financial instruments and assets may be unavailable to you for various reasons, including your account type or due to the condition or status of your Account. We may also reject an order if it has invalid specifications such as, but not limited to, its size, volume, and general market price quote.

4.3. You understand and accept that we may also cancel or hold your order, which may result from but is not limited to network interruption, system interruption, suspicious order, alleged or proven involvement in illegal financial activities, prohibited trading activities, or unstable market conditions.

4.4. Canceling orders on short notice involves a high level of risk and should be avoided as much as possible. However, we reserve the right to close or cancel a market order that was not executed due to insufficient volume or invalid specifications.

4.5. We verify each order specification accordingly to prevent any prohibited trading activities such as, but not limited to, scalping, system and platform manipulation, and the use of expert advisers (EA).

Trading on margin entails high risk and is not suitable for all investors. Past performance in any market does not indicate guaranteed future results, and trading on leverage may act against you and for you. Before you decide to trade, you should carefully assess your investment objectives, experiences, financial capabilities, and tolerance to accept the risks. There is a possibility of losing your initial investment partially or entirely. Therefore, you should not invest any funds you cannot afford to lose. You should also be aware of all the risks associated with currency exchange trading and contact an independent financial advisor in case of doubt.
